

Complying with the GLA Licensing Standards

1 day workshop for Labour Users and Labour Providers

The Gangmasters Licensing Authority Retailers' Protocol is set to ensure that issues around agency labour in the UK food supply chain remain firmly in the spotlight.

This workshop provides an excellent grounding in the skills and knowledge to enable both labour providers and labour users to implement processes to assure compliance to the GLA Licensing Standards.

It is particularly recommended for both suppliers and their labour providers to attend together to encourage a partnership approach towards addressing areas for improvement.

Workshop Overview

Section 1: Background and Current issues in UK food industry agency labour

Section 2: Working in Partnership towards Best Practice

Section 3: Complying with the GLA Standards - clause by clause

All attendees receive the ALP "Model Service Level Agreement" - a model template for managing the specific arrangements for agency labour supply.

Delegate Feedback

"A lot of difficult details covered with good humour and pace".
 "Informative, constructive, prompted me to initiate crucial action back at the office"

"Excellent! Very informative and some good information to take away. Will definitely be buying the auditing tool".

"Really worthwhile. Would be good to attend something similar annually to keep up to date with legislation".

"Really enjoyed the course. It was broken down in sections which we easily understood. A very hard subject was made very interesting"

"I felt the day was very educational and I picked up lots of tips and helpful ideas that I can use in our business".
